Lecture Location: Matherly Hall 004

Lecture Days: Tuesday (Per. 5-6), Thursday (Per. 6)

Course Description
In this course we will study the social, intellectual, political, and cultural history of the United States since the end of Reconstruction in 1877. The object of studying history is to learn about the past, but also to develop skills in analysis, critical thinking, interpretation of evidence, and expository writing. A central concern of this course will be studying the diversity of the American people, and we will devote a large portion of class time to examining how an American society made up of many cultures and ethnicities has developed and changed over time. Since the study of history always also includes placing one’s own life into context, students will be asked to reflect on their own relationship to the diverse values, attitudes and norms that have created cultural differences in the United States.

This survey class will provide an introduction to key themes, terminology and methodologies of the social and behavioral sciences. Students will learn to identify, analyze, and explain social institutions, social structures, and social processes, and how these things change over time. In each unit students will be asked to engage in problem solving techniques using both quantitative and qualitative methods. In addition, course readings will model these types of social science analysis. Over the course of the semester, will not only study the past, but also the ways a variety of ethical perspectives inform our understanding of the past as well as the individual and societal decisions of historical actors.

Social and Behavioral Sciences and Diversity Credit

General Education: Objectives for Social and Behavioral Sciences and Diversity
This course satisfies the Social and Behavioral Science Gen-Ed Credit at the University of Florida. Social and behavioral science courses provide instruction in the history, key themes, principles, terminology, and underlying theory or methodologies used in the social and behavioral sciences. Students will learn to identify, describe and explain social institutions, structures and processes. This course emphasizes the effective application of accepted problem-solving techniques. Students will apply formal and informal qualitative or quantitative analysis to examine the processes and means by which individuals make personal and group decisions, as well as the evaluation of opinions, outcomes and human behavior. Students are expected to assess and analyze ethical perspectives in individual and societal decisions.

This course also satisfies the Diversity Gen-Ed Credit at the University of Florida. Diversity courses provide instruction in the values, attitudes and norms that create cultural differences within the United States. This course will encourage you to recognize how social roles and status affect different groups and impact U.S. society. This course will guide you to analyze and to evaluate your own cultural norms and values in relation to those of other cultures, and to distinguish opportunities and constraints faced by other persons and groups.

Students will identify, evaluate and compare their own social status, opportunities and constraints with those of other persons and groups.

General Education: Student Assessment for Social and Behavioral Sciences and Diversity
Student will be assessed on their performance in several areas: a midterm exam, a final exam, a book review, weekly reflection papers, and class participation. A rubric for class participation and written work is provided below. The grade breakdown is as follows:

Course Grades
Participation: 10%

Reflection Papers: 20%

Midterm Exam: 20%

Research Paper: 20%

Final: 30%

Expectations:

The class material will consist of a combination of lectures, assigned readings, and weekly discussions. Students are expected to engage in discussions and ask and answer questions. Participation grades will be based on the willingness of each student to engage in these discussions throughout the semester. Each assigned reading must be read by the date it is due. Moreover, students will be expected to write three (3) two page, double-spaced reaction papers to the weekly readings throughout the semester. These reaction papers will relate those primary sources to the issues discussed in class. I will provide you with a general question that you need to respond to for each Reflection Paper. Each of these assignments will count toward the overall Reflection Papers grade. NO MAKE UP OR LATE REFLECTION PAPERS WILL BE ACCEPTED.

Students will turn in a 4-page, primary source research paper. More guidelines will be given later in the semester.

There will be a midterm and a final; the midterm will cover all reading and discussion up to that point, and the final will cover the material from the entire semester
Policies:

Attendance is mandatory. However, I understand that issues arise that make it necessary to miss a day or two during the semester. Students are allowed 3 unexcused absences during the semester. The fourth unexcused absence will result in a drop of your overall grade by half a letter grade (for example, instead of receiving a B+ you would receive a B). Each additional unexcused absence will result in an additional half letter decrease in your grade.

Late papers will receive a reduced grade. The time that each paper will need to be turned in by will be specified in class. A paper is considered late as soon as the designated time has passed. For example, if the paper is due at 12 p.m., the paper is considered late at 12:01 p.m. A late paper will receive a half a letter grade reduction for each day that it is late.

Announcements for class will be made via canvas, so please check the site routinely.

UF policy requires you to access and use your gatorlink email account. Excuses regarding not reading emails will not be accepted. Finally, academic dishonesty, such as cheating, plagiarism, submitting someone else’s work will not be tolerated. UF’s honor code can be found here: https://www.dso.ufl.edu/scer/process/student-conduct-honor-code/.

If you have any questions, please feel free to speak with me before or after class, or send me an email. I would be happy to discuss any of the policies or assignments one-on-one.

Students with Disabilities
Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.
